Look a little closer

Plaka's streets lie beneath the Acropolis, where homes, shops and monuments share a closely woven setting. Begin around Plateia Filomousou Etaireias and choose a short public walk. Look at ordinary thresholds and street patterns as well as picturesque façades. Nearby archaeological sites and religious buildings have their own entry rules; residential lanes deserve a quiet approach.

Something to notice

Notice how a street changes direction around a building or a slope.

A little consideration

Stay on permitted public paths, leave entrances clear and respect residents, workers and other visitors.
