Look a little closer

Peace Memorial Park is a place to remember the atomic bombing and consider its human consequences. Walk respectfully among the memorials and riverside paths, allowing time for reflection; the Peace Memorial Museum is a distinct visit with its own admission conditions.

Something to notice

The tram approach begins by the Atomic Bomb Dome at the northern side of the park; allow time to walk between memorials.

A little consideration

Keep voices low, respect ceremonies and avoid treating memorials as playful photo props.
