Look a little closer

Gran Vía brings early twentieth-century architecture, theaters and everyday city movement into one of Madrid's best-known streets. The façades reward looking upward from a safe place on the pavement. Choose a short stretch and compare buildings rather than trying to absorb the whole avenue at once.

Something to notice

Look at two rooflines or corner buildings. Notice a difference in material, decoration or the shape of the windows.

A little consideration

Stay in permitted public areas, keep entrances clear and respect people using the building for everyday work.
