Look a little closer

From Piazza del Duomo, Milan Cathedral's marble front looks almost like a single drawing. Closer in, its portals, sculpture and pinnacles reveal different scales of work. Inside, the tall nave and stained glass change the way light defines the architecture.

Something to notice

Compare the façade's silhouette from across the square with one carved detail near a portal.

A little consideration

Follow the current visitor and photography rules, and leave historic surfaces and objects untouched.
