Look a little closer

Santiago’s Plaza de Armas gathers a cathedral, civic buildings, monuments and everyday public activity around the historic center’s principal square. Walk its edges to compare the institutions facing one another, then look at how the planted interior is used today.

Something to notice

Compare two entrances facing the square and notice how each building presents itself to people outside.

A little consideration

Stay on permitted public paths, leave entrances clear and respect residents, workers and other visitors.
