Look a little closer

Discovery Park gives Seattle a generous natural landscape on the Magnolia peninsula. Trails cross different habitats toward views of Puget Sound. Choose a route suited to your time and ability, using the official map; the beach and lighthouse are a separate walk from the park entrance.

Something to notice

Notice the transition from woodland to open ground. Listen for a change in wind, water or birds.

A little consideration

Stay on permitted paths, leave plants and wildlife undisturbed and take litter with you. Keep shared paths clear.
