Look a little closer

Palazzo Madama stands in Piazza Castello with architectural layers that tell different parts of Torino's history. Its grand façade contrasts with the older structure behind it. A museum visit offers another perspective on the building, but the exterior alone rewards looking from more than one side.

Something to notice

Walk around the public exterior. Notice the contrast between the ornate frontage and the older towers behind it.

A little consideration

Stay in permitted public areas, keep entrances clear and respect people using the building for everyday work.
